

The NHS is 65 this year. Every day the NHS helps people stay healthy, recover from illness and live independent and fulfilling lives. The NHS is loved, respected and performs well against other health systems. However, if it is to survive another 65 years, it must change.

The Big Conversation Questionnaire

We know there is too much variation in the quality of care across the country and at times the NHS fails to live up to the high expectations we have.

We need to ensure that the NHS always delivers a safe, high quality, value-for-money service. And it must put a greater emphasis on keeping people healthy and well - preventing rather than treating illness. We also need to do far more to help those with mental illness and particular communities who experience health inequalities.

We are asking local people and organisations how they think we can address these issues in our area. We would very much appreciate if you could share your thoughts by completing this questionnaire.

You do not have to answer all questions, simply the ones that matter most to you.

A. Long-term conditions

- Long-term conditions include things like diabetes, high blood pressure and chronic breathing problems
- A long-term condition is an illness that cannot be cured but can be managed with medication and therapy
- Many people in Hartlepool and Stockton-on-Tees are living with long-term conditions and more people are developing them.
